

Domestic burning and the associated emission sources

Domestic heating contributes but is controlled and we are already succeeding in further reduction; more research is needed to prioritise actions across the whole range of contributors